

Ayatollah Visits U.S.A.

Washington D.C.- During his recent visit to the United States, the Ayatollah Khomeini was made fully aware of his unpopularity among the American people. Enraged over the treatment of American diplomats held hostage in Iran, people throughout the U.S. staged one of the most bizarre protests ever recorded.

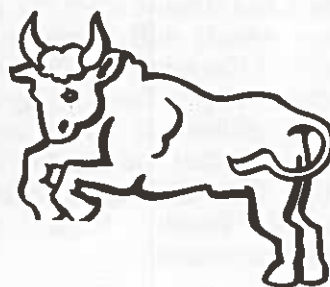

Although the public knew that the Ayatollah was in the U.S. to discuss the release of the hostages, they heartily refused to welcome him. The moment the Ayatollah landed in Washington, airport workers refused to attend his plane. This forced the Ayatollah to descend from the plane without the aid of stairs. In doing so, he caught his long white gown in the doorway and was suspended upside down for several minutes. He rudely refused to give interviews during this time.

En route from the airport, Ayatollah Khomeini was unable to find a gas station that would fuel his limousine. Four hours later he arrived at the Iranian embassy on foot. The delay was partially due to the fact that he stopped several times along the way to pray to himself.

At one time the Ayatollah was almost arrested. A small child, presumed to be a fan, handed the Ayatollah a spray of flowers. However, what Khomeini's all-seeing eyes had not detected was that the greenery among the flowers was actually marijuana. His Eminence would have been busted on the spot had it not been for a technicality. According to international law, the Ayatollah was protected by diplomatic immunity from any sort of hostile accusations or treatment.

As a final measure of protest, The American public aimed their efforts where it would hurt the most. Unknown to the Ayatollah, his dinner was spiked with a rather large dose of Ex-Lax. Unfortunately for His Holiness, he was also denied the use of the lavatory. Yes, the American people had taken all toilets hostage. In response to the call of nature, Ayatollah Khomeini decided he had best leave the country or forever hold his piece. So ended the adventures of Ayatollah Khomeini in America.

Class of '80 News

It has been called to my attention that there are some rumors floating through the Stamford High atmosphere. Seniors are frantic because their senior prom is in jeopardy. This scare is attributed to the rumor that class funds are low.

Au contraire, fellow seniors! Funds are overflowing in the treasury. In fact, the senior class has rented the main ballroom of the Plaza Hotel for the main activities. Furthermore, the after-prom will be held at Regine's Discotheque.

The prom planning committee has anticipated complaints from the students wondering how they'll all get into "The City". There's no need to worry. The committee, with its incredible foresight, has made arrangements for chauffeured transportation for everyone. All arrangements will be made for limousines and Mercedes to be available. The choice will be left to the couple.

Seniors, we're making history! This is the first time since the beginning of SHS proms that any graduating class will be able to have the pleasure of such an elegant prom. So let's get rid of all those silly rumors of bankruptcy in the senior class. Start planning for the best prom this side of the Mississippi.

Cafeteria Redecorated

The Board of Education has just given the go ahead for an SHS project which should really change the "course" of every student's day.

A major renovation and re-decoration of the cafeteria will begin this month. Plush carpeting, tablecloths, and thickly cushioned arm chairs will be, "number one priorities," said one Board member. "We want the students to dine in comfort. 'lunch should be a time of relaxation and a chance to socialize in a peaceful, pleasant environment,'" another added.

Reknowned chefs will be called in from around the world to help plan the menu. It was agreed that six entrees would be offered on a daily basis - 3 hot, 3 cold. These entrees will vary from day to day. Hot dishes will include lobster, shrimp scampi, and prime rib. Some of the cold dishes will include chef's salad, frozen yogurt with fresh fruit, and roast beef sandwiches (on rye, hard roll, or wheat). Cole slaw, potato salad, pickles, french fries, hamburgers, and cottage cheese will also be served. Special permission has been granted to SHS so that wine and beer may be served between 12:00-1:00 PM. Sodas, juices, and milk will, of course, be available.

Next, a number of the area bakeries will be considered for a concession. After much deliberation, the Board decided that the bread and rolls would be supplied from one bakery while the cakes and pies will be ordered fresh, daily from another.

The color scheme for the room is still under discussion and a hot debate over the paintings which will hang on the walls of the new cafeteria is still raging. If you have an opinion as to either of these issues, please contact the Round Table staff. We will be glad to let the Board know what your preferences are.

Baseball Team Has New Look

Stamford High has always been proud of its Black Knight baseball team, but this year our team will be batting in a strange style.

This season is in for an unusual twist due to the rise of ERA and lack of funds for athletic activities. The Board of Education has voted unanimously to combine both the girls' softball and boys' baseball teams to form one co-ed line up of nine players.

Recently, females have been breaking through the barriers of male-dominated sports. Now, like Tiny-League and Little League, Stamford High is now opening its doors to qualified female players.

After talking with Coach Pike, I discovered that the only setback the girls will have to overcome will be developing a taste for chewing tobacco.

Sign ups will be posted at either locker room exit throughout this week. All new talent is welcome.

Practices will be held on a rotating schedule, starting first period and working on a seven day time slot.

Uniforms will be a combination of leftovers from both of last season's teams. A straw pull will be taken by all players to insure fairness in the final uniform decision.
