

"Stagedoor" CLOSE

by Maryanne Macari

This weekend's production of STAGEDOOR has been called off due to reasons beyond the Thespian Society's control. Eariler this week Sandy Wyllie (the leading lady) was rushed to the hospital after swallowing the mike during the morning announcements. The doctor removed most of the mike, but there is still a part on the top of her tongue leaving her unable to pronounce certain vowels such as a, e, i, o, u and sometimes y.

Mr. Arter (the director) was prepared to put the play on without the lead but unfortunately there were other mishaps. For one, the cast decided to start rehearsing without scripts and they had a bonfire and burned them all so that they wouldn't get tempted to peek at a line. But, at the dress rehearsal, they were all hit one by one on the head with a swinging light causing a loss of memory to each of the cast members. Obviously they could not put on the play not knowing any lines.

Kiki Kantzas (another leading lady) was particularly upset about the cancellation of the play. Yesterday she was taken away in a straight jacket on a stretcher after she had been running and screaming through the halls "The show must go on!!! The show must go on!!!" and banging her head on each locker trying desperately to regain her memory.

Refunds will be made on Monday morning in the auditorium.

New Rules for Auditorium

The custodians started some new rules since the auditorium has been renovated. The rules say that anyone entering the auditorium must take a bath an hour before, must wear a white suit and must remove their shoes before they are allowed to be seated. Everyone in the audience will be carefully inspected. If they do not pass inspection they will get thrown headfirst into either the closest ladies or mens room (depending on the gender.) They will have to look in the mirror and say 5000 times "cleanliness is next to Godliness, I must learn to be clean!" Afterwards, they will learn and sing the Alma Matter at the top of Landmark Square and will then be thrown off to the street. The custodians feel that this is a mild punishment.

Help Wanted

Looking for a job? Tired of a $1.50 allowance every week? Well today may be your lucky day. Many prestigious companies and small firms heard of how ambitious Stamford High students are and immediately contacted Mr. Attanasio informing him of some job openings. Here are just a few with the qualifications required:

1. Attorney at Law wanted for large corporation. No educational experience necessary. Must be able to count, disco dance, and be a fan of Shaun Cassidy.

2. Coffee shop waitress immediate employment.

Must have six and a half years (exactly) experience with rock collecting.

Many benefits available such as: free coffee once a week (only after 700 consecutive hours of work with no breaks).

3. Brain Surgeon: two years of typing required. No high school diploma or record necessary, just a recommendation from any local bouncer.

4. Babysitter: pleasant family with 13 young children. Female preferred. Ph.D. in Political Science is a definite must. Will hire on the spot if and only if applicant has proof of having seen "Superman the movie" at least five times.

5. Executive secretary. Single female wanted. No typing required, no bookkeeping, record keeping, dictation, etc. Must be under age 25 and free every weekend.

Remember, these are just a few of the many job opportunities being offered you by virtue of your being Stamford High students. So take advantage of these once in a lifetime chances. You're sure to find a job that fits you perfectly. If you're interested, see Mr. A any Sunday morning between 5:30 and 7 am in room 603. You'll be glad you did.

Open Your Lunch!

Good news for outdoor buffs.

After many discussions with the Board of Education, we will finally be able to eat lunch outside when the weather is nice. It's going to be great.

However, there are a few rules we will have to follow:

1. No littering. There will be garbage cans on the grounds.

2. You cannot leave the school grounds.

3. Normal voice range must be contained because there are classes in session.

4. You cannot enter the building until your lunch wave is over.

5. Smoking will not be permitted.

6. Lunches must be entirely eaten. No foods are to be returned to the building.

If the school administrators find that these rules are not observed, the privilege will be taken away. Of course the security guards and teachers will be on the lookout as well as student monitors to report violations.

Hot lunch will be served near the entrance of the gym foyer and milk and other refreshments will be available. During all lunch waves, music will be played ranging from disco to rock.

You may bring frisbees, balls, have baseball games and even lie out in the sun and get a tan.

The date has not been set for when the program will start, but rest assured that it will be announced over and over on the P.A.

S.H.S. Goes Hollywood

As you all know, this years Gong Show was a giant success. But, there was also an added suprise, which was kept confidential. Chuck Barris, the host of the real Gong Show, attended the performance, and was amazed. Never before had he seen such "Wild and Crazy acts." "Leave it to the kids to come up with Zany and entertaining ideas" he said.

The winner of the Gong Show and the runners up along with two of the gonged were asked to go out to Hollywood, on an all expense payed trip for a week to do the real Gong Show. When we asked Chuckie what his favorite act was, he replied "They were all excellent, but, I'd like to see the Worms wiggle on my stage." With that he clapped his hands and said "So Long."